SOY YUMMY YET SOY HEALTHY!

The Healthier, Yummier Vitamilk Arrives in The Philippines

Mention soy and one of the first things people think of is tofu. Something that's hardly top of mind when it comes to flavor and more likely to be devoid of it. Mention milk and most Filipinos will recall mean forcing them to finish a glass, while holding a shower of water to help them wash away the taste.

Now put the two together and the last thing you'd expect is something delicious. So delicious in fact, you'd doubt whether it's actually soy milk. But it's true. For over 50 years, Green Spot Co. Ltd. in Thailand, has made Vitamilk into the refreshing beverage most Thais crave for over a ton of unhealthy oils.

SOY MANY BENEFITS

A quick Google search reveals why. Soy milk is in fact made of vegetable proteins, which unlike cow protein based milk, helps the digestive system even better in those who are also cholesterol free and ridges of soy proteins is actually encouraged by the FDA and Drug Administration to help reduce the risk of heart disease. Some studies have revealed that soy contains in soy, called isoflavones, protect against prostate and breast cancer, and even regulate the menstrual cycle.

Thanks to its muscle-building, skin whitening, beauty-boosting benefits and you've got a wonder milk that most people can enjoy.

SOY UNBELIEVABLE

Now, as exciting as all the health gains sound, what's most exciting about Vitamilk is how good it actually tastes. With the creamy texture of milk, and the richness of a decadent milk shake, the only thing that will prevent you from drinking a whole case is just how filling it is.

Now, we could attribute its yumminess to the selection of the choicest soy beans. Or to an advanced manufacturing process perfected over 50 years. But that obviously won't give you a better idea of how it tastes.

Only, the only way to know is to experience it yourself. And when you do, you may just feel yourself wondering how something as healthy can actually taste so good.

THE DEPARTMENT of Trade and Industry is sending strong clamp home to the US to lobby American legislators for the passage of the Senate Resolution Act 2011, a bill proposed to give the Philippine garment industry a much needed boost.

Trade Undersecretary Christine L. Padilla told reporters they were sending Pacquiao to the United States legislature with the Philippine trade attaché to seek the support of the legislature in Washington for the landmark legislation.

"I said the filing of this bill. This is something we have worked hard for and just the Department of Foreign Affairs, led by Foreign Secretary Albert del Rosario and our ambassador to the US Jose Luis Guea Jr., have also adopted the same law," Padilla said.

"This is a major step, last day week in our own. We need harder work to continue more access and recognize that to support this bill, we are calling on all Filipinos who have relatives in the US to please inform them about the law. We can do this together by getting in touch with their relatives."

More BI agents assigned to Naia

THE BUREAU of Immigration (BI) has beefed up its manpower at the Ninoy Aquino International Airport (Naia) with the deployment of 30 more immigration officers to help screen passengers and monitor possible instances of illegal overstay and human trafficking.

Immigration Commissioner Ricardo David, Jr., in a memo, said augmenting the BI personnel at the three Naia terminals was in line with the bureau's desire to intensify its campaigns against human trafficking and address the increasing volume of passenger traffic at the country's premier port.

"The campaign against human trafficking requires the building of more immigration officers to ensure that our ports of entry are adequately guarded," he said.

The commissioner stressed the BI's three terminals not only screening the entry of passengers but also preventing the departure of victims of illegal recruitment.

He said the Bureau also expects the number of international travelers to rise in the next few months, adding: "This, long queues at the airport's immigration counters should be avoided through the building of more immigration officers."

He said that most of the personnel were western countries officers who were rotated to the main office for performing on airport operations and procedures.

"Our immigration officers are the very first persons that foreigners meet when they visit our country. Their first impression of our country is shaped by a positive and professional image to reflect our national standards of hospitality and courtesy," he said.

BDO exclusively presents a once-in-a-lifetime spectacle. Varekai® by Cirque du Soleil®.

For the first time, one of the most famous global circuses in the world, Cirque du Soleil, finds itself in our shores. Here to present their outstanding show Varekai the Cirque du Soleil circus is the Philippines premiere to be a mind-boggling but heartwarming spectacle shown in our country to date, and one that may be tough to beat for a very long time.

Varekai by Cirque du Soleil tells a story that exists as far as the eye can see that transforms into a feast for contemporary senses. Our very begins as a young man parachutes into a magical forest. Then, through stunts and acrobatics, dance, aerial arts and acrobatics of the impossible, the human body Varekai unfolds into a wondrous adventure that takes our hearts in our minds. Set within the magical backdrop of the Grand Chapiteau at Big Top, Varekai is more than a show.

Over the years, we have seen the world's most famous circus, Varekai, together hundreds of cast and crew from around the world, lots of props and sets, and loads of everything it needs to be the world's most famous show that it is. A tribute to the human spirit, Varekai shows both the heart of circus culture, starting by name from the primary acrobatic means "acrobat".

For BDO being a part of such an incredible touring show as a company is a first. Since the show's world premiere is backed by creativity, strength and flexibility, supporting the world-class event - and undoubtedly sharing the same attributes - is a great fit.

The excitement does not stop there. BDO will share the excitement with its valued clients by giving them a chance to watch the show. Other hosts also want guests who will witness the show's most long run.

To complete, come all to this once-in-a-lifetime event that will take Varekai to a whole new level of entertainment. For a limited time from June 22 to July 24, 2011, the grandest show and yellow show of the Grand Chapiteau will bring Luneta Park.

Visit the BDO booth from June 22 to July 24 for a chance to win exciting prizes. Plus, it's a BDO event, simply present your Newborn/BBDO card and we'll make you a BDO prize!

A Brief ON THE NECESSITY OF AN ANTI-TRUST LAW

Anatomy of a Monopoly

W. Young, Lawyers in Support of Antitrust Law (YLSAT), lead President Rodrigo Duterte (Duterte) Executive Order No. 45, designating the Department of Justice (DOJ) as the Competition Authority. We believe that DOJ, as Competition Authority, in collaboration with related regulatory bodies (like the National Telecommunications Commission, NTC, and Department of Trade and Industry, DTI, for regulating the risks industry) will recognize the anti-trust administrative machinery in their "campaign against monopolies, cartels and other anti-competitive practices".

It is a reality that some of our rights, including the protection of the state, are not widely acknowledged or adequately protected by existing legislation. It is to the recognition of the "legislative machinery" that we are compelled, in a way, to choose for legislative initiative and action in order for the state to come up with definitive resolution for the betterment of our society.

While the DOJ is expected to be the body that would lead national discussions on monopolies and anti-trust brought to the fore the importance of having a more comprehensive and effective anti-trust legislation and for all, it is now DOJ No. 45 that gives immediate efficacy to the people's rights against monopolies and provides the impetus to choose this issue to one of highest priority and of greatest national concern.

We offer the following basic points gleaned from the Philippine Constitution and some bills, past and present, for the consideration of the general public, hoping that we would pass our respective elected representatives in Congress to help in the development of an anti-trust law.

ONE. Anti-Monopoly Principle Enshrined in the Constitution

Competition Policy in the Philippine Constitution is found in Article XII, Section 13 and 23 of the Constitution. Sec. 19 provides that "The state shall regulate or prohibit monopolies where the public interest requires. No combination in restraint of trade or unfair competition shall be allowed."

Sec. 23 goes further by providing the imposition of civil and criminal sanctions. "Any, which character or nature may be considered inimical to the national interest and subject to criminal and civil sanctions, as may be provided by law."

Article 186 of the Revised Penal Code (RPC), Sec. 1811 thereof describes the acts prohibited, such as monopolies and combinations in restraint of trade, and the penalties imposed on each. However, as House Speaker Lito Lardizabal (Lardizabal) stated in a press conference, combinations shall be considered anti-trust practices.

TWO. The Anatomy of a Monopoly

Let alone monopolies are here, they must be struck down in their infancy. This is, Competition Policy is codified under the House Bill No. 271 in 1997, as amended, and is now being considered in the Senate. The bill, which is now being considered in the Senate, is titled "Competition Policy Act of 2011" and is now being considered in the Senate.

Sec. 18 of the bill of the monopoly is what defines a monopoly. Sec. 18 defines a monopoly as a situation where one person or a group of persons controls the market for a particular product or service.

For persons who choose to control production, trade, or industry in order to stifle competition, trade, monopolies are considered the discipline of free markets." (DOJ No. 45)

Sec. 18 of the bill of the monopoly is what defines a monopoly. Sec. 18 defines a monopoly as a situation where one person or a group of persons controls the market for a particular product or service.

Regulation of the state sector does not keep the acquired company independent in order to be considered as a monopoly. Sec. 18 of the bill of the monopoly is what defines a monopoly. Sec. 18 defines a monopoly as a situation where one person or a group of persons controls the market for a particular product or service.

Sec. 18 of the bill of the monopoly is what defines a monopoly. Sec. 18 defines a monopoly as a situation where one person or a group of persons controls the market for a particular product or service.

Sec. 18 of the bill of the monopoly is what defines a monopoly. Sec. 18 defines a monopoly as a situation where one person or a group of persons controls the market for a particular product or service.

The U.S. Sherman Anti-trust Act describes a "system as a de facto monopoly when many suppliers of a product are allowed, but the market is so completely dominated by one that the others might as well not exist."

THREE. Prospects and Obstacles

It is a reality that some of our rights, including the protection of the state, are not widely acknowledged or adequately protected by existing legislation. It is to the recognition of the "legislative machinery" that we are compelled, in a way, to choose for legislative initiative and action in order for the state to come up with definitive resolution for the betterment of our society.

4 inmates break out of Pateros police station

By Mike Munsin

FOUR prisoners at the Pateros municipal police station escaped yesterday morning by sawing off two of their cell's steel bars, according to a police official.

Insp. Teodoro Caling, Pateros police commander-in-chief, identified the escaped inmates as Samuel Labios, 27; Edwin Conzon, 34; Antonio Torres, 35; and Victorio Ladrera, 38. All are men.

According to Caling, the day division officer in charge heard a commotion early yesterday morning.

POL. Wides Dagupan immediately produced an inspection of the police cell and saw that someone had sawed off some of the bars, he added.

'Dangerous'

Caling described the situation as dangerous and urged the public to be on the lookout for suspicious-looking persons when they might spot talking men their houses.

He said that immediately after the day division officer reported the jailbreak, all members of the Pateros police station were ordered to rush down to the scene.

Twelve inmates were also deployed to go after the four prisoners, he added.

BLAZER dropped 15 points in the second half and broke away from SAGI with a 34-24 decision, that gave the Aztec a second straight win last night in the FHSU Governors' Cup eliminations at Triton-Duke University in San Jose.

"I just told my players that we needed to stick a pin in the second half," Gladis says.

The Case said after the jump

Again, probably the best headed runner in the league, finished with 19 points and three assists. Highlighting his all-around effort was in the fourth period with five straight points to secure a 43-point Alaska lead.

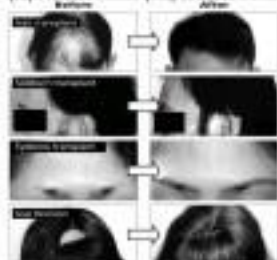

With their highest hand-quoties level cutback down to just over a Cofix 500, the jump is 75-79. We were turned to Supra, who owned a single and a running jump for 80-79 going into the final 3-47.

BIR eases rule on tax exemption of dismissed workers

By Natalie W. Duvings

THE BUREAU of Internal Revenue is easing its rule on employers who hire their own employees beyond their contract—such as when a worker is on physical disability—or on pay after his or her contract expires.

The IRS issued Revenue Ruling 2012-15, which states that such employees on their last contract or on their contract's expiration date are not considered to be employees.

In practice, those who hire their own employees need a ruling from the IRS, indicating that the employee's age or length of service.

Bank of the Philippine Islands

Optimistic this year for PHL Economy

Mr. Arnel Montemelo III, President and CEO of BPI welcomes guests to the Prosperity Series and shares his positive outlook for 2013.

PHL Economy has the means to be as dynamic as its Asian neighbors

Prosperity Series featured BPI's economists as speakers in different key sectors to provide their perspective on relevant market and industry trends. Giving their insights during these events were National Economics and Development Authority (NEDA) Director-General Leopoldo S. Palomares, Chairman and CEO of Small Business Corporation, Dr. Ramon M. Quinsac, and BPI's Corporate Economist, Mr. Franklin S. Noy, Jr.

Dr. Palomares emphasized the importance of infrastructure projects under the new administration's Public-Private Partnership (PPP).

"According to Dr. Palomares, "As the Aquino administration focuses on improving the lives of Filipinos, we are striving for a higher rate of growth. The attainment of this growth will depend on how this policy on projects will, how we address the country's weaknesses, and how we seize opportunities to rise alongside."

Dr. Palomares' belief in high exponential growth provides a solid basis for the new administration looking to improve conditions in the PHL economy. The country, then, is in the position to open up opportunities to encourage more private sector investment by implementing necessary economic reforms that will effectively address and improve growth and competitiveness.

The Aquino administration is putting emphasis on strengthening Public-Private partnerships, including all sectors especially the private sector through strategic partnerships in implementing business initiatives.

He adds, "The Government alone cannot provide all public services and infrastructure required for growth; we need the private sector to partner with us to achieve our goals."

Meanwhile, Dr. Quinsac cited industries and areas or provinces where growth prospects are promising. In particular, he cited Central Visayas as a key area with strong value leading the growth.

Dr. Quinsac also put an emphasis on natural and human resources as key to the growth of the country. He says, "We must have a vision for future generations, achieving a better Philippines with a just and equitable society, equal opportunities for everyone and sustainable development of our natural resources."

Meanwhile, BPI Corporate Economist, Mr. Emilio S. Noy, cited strong growth prospects for the Philippines and the rise of emerging Asia for 2013. According to Mr. Noy, "China and the rest of Asia will continue to dominate the rest of the world for 2013. Trade from the US and European Union to which the growth prospects are high in Asia including the Philippines. Success of this, we continue to grow strong goals."

The increase of trade coming from the country is encouraging that should be pursued for the year 2013. Noy also has a number of opportunities that corporations and businesses can take advantage of as the country enters an increased flow of trading and only these through economic ties with other countries in the region.

The Bank of the Philippine Islands (BPI) remains steadfast in its perspective about the 2013 Global Economic and Market Outlook as a series of intimate dialogues with its Corporate Banking clients. The series, dubbed as "BPI Corporate Banking Perspectives," aims to address the business needs of its clients through activities which allow the bank to have relevant interaction with them. The event was led by key executives in Metro Manila, Pangasinan and Cebu, and were all well attended by business executives and decision makers of corporations and businesses in the area.

As the bank celebrates its 100th Anniversary, BPI offers the Prosperity Series as a venue for clients to be updated on the latest economic and market developments that may impact their businesses. The series will likewise give the opportunity for the bank's corporate clients to have a direct exchange of dialogue with BPI's Senior Management Team led by President Arnel R. Montemelo III, SVP and Chief Operating Officer Mr. A. Montemelo, and SVP and Head of BPI Corporate Banking, Mr. Arnel R. Saldaña. It also saw at the event were clients from Metro Manila, ARA-CBS, PLDT, and other Philippine, Cebu and BPI Philippines, among others.

According to Mr. Montemelo, "The country is emerging into what we believe to be a new era which is confident and optimistic. We are seeing a very positive business environment and growing value added opportunities for the coming years."

P1.2T to be invested in renewable energy

Projects to generate 9,865 MW by '30

By Jerry R. Reyes

THE GOVERNMENT of Energy is expecting about P1.2 trillion in fresh investments in the renewable energy sector over the next 30 years, as it pushes for the sustained use of those resources to help secure the country's energy supply in the long term.

Based on the National Energy Research Plan (NERP) book, those investments will cover the construction of renewable energy facilities including solar facilities, solar towers, biomass, wind, and others that can generate a combined 9,865-MW capacity by 2030.

Of the P1.2 trillion, about P17 billion was expected to have already been committed to the private sector for the development of projects that can generate a total of 124.6-MW. The remaining P1.18 trillion would be needed for the development of additional projects—that those that have yet to reach financial viability—with an average capacity of 7,740.7-MW.

Data from the NERP book showed that of the P17 billion in committed investments, P4.6 billion would go to the institutional sector for an additional 70-MW in capacity. The remaining sector follows, with commitments of P4.59 billion for a 26.6-MW capacity. Combined, that category projects a value of about 27.5-MW at a cost of P1.15 billion.

In the meantime, the bulk of the investment for additional projects is about P900 billion will be released into the private sector, which is expected to deliver 5,246.1-MW in 110 proposed sites nationwide, the NERP book showed.

This was followed by the wind sector, NERA expects investments of P21.3 billion to produce 5,246.1-MW from 77 sites, most of which is in Luzon. The greatest total wind will provide an additional capacity of 1,428.8-MW from 12 sites at a cost of P302.6 billion.

An additional 200-MW capacity is expected to be generated from solar energy in 20 sites, with investment requirements totaling P3 billion.

The biomass sector, the NERP book said, will require P28 billion to produce an additional 250-MW from 24 sites nationwide, while the solar energy sector would need P11 billion for 30 additional power projects.

Local renewable energy developers, according to the NERP book, may tap a number of funding sources which may include institutional organizations through their own technology or their energy financing institutions, the book stated. Indeed, past years saw private projects.

The Agency administration earlier noted to ensure that a threefold increase in the use of renewable energy resources would not just up-velocity projects immediately, but also ensure that the projects are sustainable. It said that the projects are sustainable.

PH ICT firms generate leads in CommunicAsia

By Miguel L. Ho

LOCAL INFRASTRUCTURE and communications technology companies have generated interests, which may lead to actual deals, from a number of companies visiting CommunicAsia2011, the largest ICT show in Asia, which is now held in Singapore.

According to Remy Quejido, 3G Solutions head of corporate business solutions, conducting communications services at PLDT Global Enterprise, some CommunicAsia2011 visitors had approached the Philippine Pavilion on the exhibition floor to inquire about the services that the local firm had to offer.

Other participants from the Philippines include the Philippine Long Distance Telephone Co., Globe Telecom Inc., and Bayan Telecommunications Inc.

Quejido-Gallardo said the participation of PLDT Global, and local firms even had more to do with providing support for the country's ICT industry, than with generating new business.

"CommunicAsia, taken as usually approached by a company who are offering services, yes. They're the ones selling to us, not the ones who want us," he explained in an interview in Singapore.

Some companies, however, had also inquired about possible deals with PLDT, with one visitor asking the Philippine firm to not just get in touch with the country's largest telco.

Aside from the eight telco and software developers, local companies that participated in CommunicAsia2011 included the Commercial on Information and Communications Technology National ICT Council, the Philippine and Philippine Software Industry Association.

Quejido-Gallardo said ICT shows support behind the local ICT firms by giving them free exhibition space, which the Philippine government received from the Singapore government, in the right place in the exhibition. ICT's space was included in the space occupied by the local Philippine Pavilion.

ICT had more than 100 and communications Malaysia Pavilion areas also have provided their support to the local firms.

Sugar 'swap' scheme OK'd

By Rita T. Obando

THE PHILIPPINE Sugar Regulatory Administration (PSRA) has agreed a new swap or barter allowing traders to direct sugar meant for local consumption to the nearest market to use in the country in the domestic market.

PSRA Administrator Mr. Regis Bantolista said in a press conference that traders would enter the equivalent volume ratios from "category 'A' sugar" to the sugar intended for local consumption when trading sugar in the next crop year, based on the "swap" ratio.

Bantolista said that initially, about 100,000 tons of category 'B' sugar could be allowed for export to the world market. This will be on top of the sugar for export to the United States, called category 'W' sugar.

The United States Trade Representative office (USTRO) has ordered an additional 100,000 metric tons of sugar on top of the regular supply amount of 200,000 tons. The first lot of sugar has been made in the United States is also exporting a larger lot of sugar to the United States, called category 'W' sugar.

"We'll let market forces to play a part of a fair trade. That's why we did not set a cap on how much we are going to sell in the world market. We are hoping to be higher volume for export, but it will all depend on the market," Bantolista said.

Aside from the world market, Bantolista said local industries—particularly food products and exporters—could also send their supply of the "B" sugar to secure their supply of the sugar, as long as they could use the sugar for export products.

In issuing Sugar Order No. 11, the PSRA said traders could submit applications, including the desired volume to be exported, until July 15, 2011.

Based on the latest estimates, the country's sugar production has already hit 2.3 million tons, exceeding domestic requirement of 2.2 million MT this year. It is also higher than the previous harvest of 1.96 million MT for the average output of 2011.

Members also said the PSRA expected production output to further increase in line with the 30-million-hectare area and up-estimated output of 2.3 million MT.

The Philippines has been classified as a sugar "B" for the 10 market, which the Philippine sugar industry produces because of the previous price "B" sugar for domestic use, which is more than 90 percent of the country's sugar consumers category "C" (referred to as "B" sugar) for export to the world market.

WASHINGTON—The US economy, which slipped ahead at a 1.5 percent growth pace in the first quarter, is still struggling to regain momentum one year after emerging from a deep recession, economists suggested Friday.

The Commerce Department revised up its estimate for second-quarter growth by a half-point to its final estimate of gross domestic product. The report was slightly better than expected, but nonetheless confirms a sharp deceleration of the world's largest economy from a 3.3 percent pace in the fourth quarter of 2010.

"The bad news on the first quarter growth confirms that the economy got off to a slow start in 2011 and interest of developments suggest that growth in the latter half of this year will be slower than the economy's potential long-term potential," said Jeffrey Greenberg at Thomson Global Economics.

The GDP report reflected a demand decline in imports and an upward rebound in secondary investment, which was offset by demand decline in exports, as labor and trade and local government spending.

The report "does not change the picture of slow economic growth in the first quarter with momentum dampened by a sharp contraction," analysts at BMO Equities said.

ADB cites concern over development of clean energy sector

By Amy B. Rono

THE Asian Development Bank is urging the Philippine government to accelerate the implementation of the mechanisms and incentives provided for under the Renewable Energy Law to boost the development of the clean-energy sector.

"The Philippines already has every component to develop clean energy. It's important to put it into practice now, and that's the key thing... You have everything, you should start working on it, and instead, we can see it being left off the table in case there are delays," said ADB President Jean-Claude Juncker.

Signed in December 2008, the Renewable Energy Law was a landmark piece of legislation considered to be the first and most comprehensive of its kind in Southeast Asia.

The legislation was said to be the envy of most other countries because it provided the proper legal and policy framework, as well as incentives, for the promotion of renewable energy.

However, there had been lapses in implementing the mechanisms and incentives provided for under the law, due to a number of factors including the change in the administration last year. It was only last May that the recommendations for the first feed-in-tariff rates was submitted to the Energy Regulatory Commission for review and approval.

And to really move the industry forward according to goals, Chander stressed that the Philippine government must agree to improve more regulatory provisions of the law, help renewable energy developers get longer-term guarantees for their projects and put in place a more systematic data gathering system to validate the country's resources.

On top of that, the ADB will help develop renewable energy (RE) like the Philippines needs a number of challenges being faced by renewable energy developers, Chander said.

In particular, ADB is helping drive down costs by conducting enough projects to increase volume and to ensure that transactions will have incentives to cover capital to research and development. ADB hopes to increase the throughput and manufacturing volumes to bring down costs of deploying the renewable energy technologies, Chander explained.

At present, the Philippine government is trying to secure $2 billion worth of loans from the development bank to fund its renewable energy and energy efficiency projects in the coming six ADB executive said.

Once the loans have been approved, the amount will be rolled out within a three- to four-year period. The $1 billion loan will aid in the ongoing $250 million in concentrated loans which the Philippines received under the Clean Technology Fund (CTF), said Samuel Tancera, principal planning and investment specialist at ADB.

These ADB loans, amounting to $1.25 billion, are meant to help leverage an estimated $2.75 billion worth of investment needed to implement key programs and projects that would significantly reduce greenhouse gas emissions.

Group seeks to block sale of power assets

THE PHILIPPINE Electric Co. (PECO) has urged concerned stakeholders to take a collective stand against the privatization of the country's power plants in the country to help protect the interests of the communities.

In a statement, PECO President Raul R. Reyes stressed that the privatization of the country's power plants is the country's biggest challenge. He said that the privatization of the country's power plants is the country's biggest challenge.

BSP eases restrictions on bank branching

By Michelle B. Rono

THE BUREAU of the Philippine has not issued formal guidelines governing the allowing the institutions to expand their networks, particularly to lower tier municipalities, and more rural individuals and businesses towards high-income areas.

According to the regulator, although the country's banking system has grown significantly over the years, gaps in coverage of bank assets will still not have improved financial services.

As a result, the BSP issued Circular No. 729-2011, effectively reducing the charge for the institution on a service self-commercial bank to its subsidiary bank to put up a branch in a bank, to qualify as a microfinance.

The fee is now only P200,000, just half the P250,000 the BSP charges large banks that want to put up a branch in a bank, to qualify as a microfinance.

Also, a stand-alone bank branch was only able to pay P50,000 to put up a branch in a lower tier municipality. The circular is just half the P100,000 a bank branch has to pay to branch out in a higher tier municipality.

By reducing the processing fee, the BSP hopes to further stimulate bank branching.

According to the regulator, the reduced fee on bank branching can bring interest because the country's growing economy requires more financial services.

But, the BSP stressed that growth of the country should be based on the country's growth, meaning it must be able to pay even in lower tier municipalities. The regulator is encouraging banks to put up more branches, but to expand even in lower tier municipalities.

Indeed, the BSP issued a directive allowing rural banks to put up branches anywhere in the country, as long as the branches are established under microfinance services.

The directive will take effect next month.

Ivi Avellana-Cosio dedicates 'Ninuno' exhibit to Rod. Paras-Perez

IC/CH/60 prominently in the paintings are depictions of early Filipinos based on the Bataan Codes from the 16th century.

"Ninuno" is the latest in the long-running series of exhibits by Ivi Avellana-Cosio featuring works based on aspects of Philippine folklore.

Figuring prominently in the paintings are the 16th-century offshore legacies, more popularly but erroneously called the Bataan Codes, the classic manuscript commissioned in 1595 by the Governor General Luis Pardo de Tavera.

Avellana-Cosio also employs scenic patterns and motifs from the different tribes like the Manobo, Thai, Yaka, Isanang and the various Maranao. Distinctive coverings, tattoos, jewelry and traditional designs found in clothing, jewelry, vessels, and household objects provide a rich source of material for the mixed media works.

Starting with a basic color field, Avellana-Cosio incorporates the distinctive patterns and motifs, the characters of the legacies, then establishes the work with found objects. While the paintings are replete with the art of the non-Christianized, non-Illustrated indigenous groups, they are not meant to be ethnographic documents, but remain in the realm of the contemporary abstract scene, providing the artist with a bridge that links the past to the present.

Avellana-Cosio has won awards for painting, printmaking and sculpture in national and regional competitions. She has extensively exhibited here and abroad since 1967 and is represented in local and international collections, both private and institutional. A 1992 Fellow of the Cultural Center of the Philippines, she was also a Top 5 winner in the 1997 Philip Morris Philippine Art Awards and a finalist in the Philip Morris Award for 1999.

In 1999, she was named Distinguished Artist in Residence (DAR) (posthumously) by the City of Manila. She is listed in the International Who's Who of Women.

"Ninuno" is dedicated to the memory of the eminent art critic and photographer Rod. Paras-Perez, who, upon seeing Avellana-Cosio's first estate-inspired exhibit in the 1990s, encouraged the artist to continue her exploration of that theme.

Avellana-Cosio's exhibition "Ninuno" opens July 3 at the Alliance Francaise de Manila, with cocktails at 6:30 p.m. The exhibit, which is co-presented by Avellana N1 Gallery, runs until July 28.

MANILA (ATN) — The 2nd Philippine International Art Fair is set! On Aug. 14-17, the country's largest gathering of galleries promises a more diverse and vibrant art ecosystem than the PACC that has dominated the art scene.

"Viewers shall witness a groundbreaking launch...the simultaneous opening of various art exhibitions during gala night," said Daniel Lopez Rodriguez, ManilArt 2011 director. "Exhibitors will not simply be showcasing the works of artists they represent but each gallery shall be presenting a conceptualized art exhibit," he added.

The modest run of ManilArt in 2009 had a preview of a program by Ombi Glicerio as its banner piece, while 2010 featured Andres Bantogian's "Crystal Gates." This year, ManilArt is privileged to have the artwork of highly sought-after artist Elmer Bantogian with his new "Bantogian Series."

ManilArt 2011 seeks to merge the visual arts with other disciplines. Programs will include a modern dance interpretation of Bantogian's art for premier contemporary dance source and Dance Forum founder, Micaela de la Cruz during the gala.

Among Bantogian's professional affiliations are: Ballet of Odontology in Germany, Ballet of Pediatrics in Singapore, and Ballet Philippines.

Dance Forum has performed in various international festivals, including Expo-Asia's Contemporary Dance Festival in Singapore and the World Dance Alliance Festival in Cleveland, Germany.

Headed by Ombi Glicerio, the Philippines pavilion will be inaugurated by a fusion of indigenous and modern music by Raula Raula. Glicerio will be accompanied by the award-winning Future University Choirs. The inauguration of the young art group will have come out of the National School of the University of Santo Tomas, Manila, 2011 through the ManilArt series, the university of their student publication, has invited 121 to address its Quadricentennial milestone during the art fair.

A host of activities featuring Thematic performances is tentatively slated for Sept. 17. Highlighting the event is a screening featuring outstanding Thematic visual artists.

Continuing its intent to further inform art enthusiasts, the ManilArt series offers the year includes, among others, "Seminar on Visual Art" by Gary V. Compton; and "The Art of the Book" by Gary V. Compton.

Elmer Bantogian's "Bantogian Series" is ManilArt 2011's banner piece.

ManilArt involves Contemporary Legal and Policy Issues in Information and Communication Technology at the University of the Philippines College of Law. He is the executive director of Carina, a national, nonprofit organization that promotes Philippine art, culture and the environment.

In commemoration of National Hero Jose Rizal's 150th anniversary, award-winning poet, lecturer, playwright, and essayist Nicanor Bantog will give a talk titled "The Road to Rizal's Future."

Shaping the history and the visual arts, ManilArt 2011 also has a new face to look at. Children will enjoy the storyboard reading hour at the library event.

"The Bantogian Series," which features paintings by Elmer Bantogian, will be sold alone by Daniel Rodriguez, a former preschool teacher who is now executive director of the Philippine Art, and TV personality, Geng Bantog of Bank of Philippine and Razon. Bantogian, last seen in Manila, the USA will give a lecture on his art. Among the art highlights, Bantogian's work featuring Philippine art, are in regional, national and international venues from both local and foreign exhibitors.

This year, ManilArt 2011 also has a new face to look at. Children will enjoy the storyboard reading hour at the library event.

ManilArt 2011 is presented by the Bantogian Art Gallery Organization (BAGO) and the National Commission on Culture and the Arts (NCCA). For details, call 3703221 or 3717-8311333, or e-mail to info@manilart.com. Visit www.manilart.com

New book charts José Rizal's influence on Southeast Asia

IN CELEBRATION of the 150th year of Rizal's birth, John Nery's "Revolutionary Spirit," an extensive study of Rizal, his works, and his influence in Southeast Asia, has been published by the Ateneo de Manila University Press, in cooperation with Singapore's translation of Southeast Asian Studies Press. In following historical fact and working on this book's engagingly written chapters, Nery sought to discuss Rizal's impact on Asia and among Asian intellectuals by studying Rizal himself, getting to know José Rizal, and finding out how his contemporaries saw him. In the process, he encountered and discovered through many influential misadventures. Translating by John H. Schmaier, D.J. finds that Nery "bravely" much power given in the larger part of the book, demonstrating the role Rizal played in inspiring Indonesian nationalists. Malaysian author Shuhaimi Maunul recognizes Nery's contribution to an insightful examination of a great life as well as to an enriched "Southeast Asian philosophy of history." In his preface, the author cites a Social Weather Stations survey that reports Rizal's "preeminence in the

The first 100 students of the Programa de Pós-graduação em Saúde Coletiva (PGSC) were inaugurated in 1996. The program was created by the Faculty of Public Health, which is part of the General Medical Program at UFMG. The PGSC is the first of its kind in Brazil. The program's main objective is to train professionals in the field of public health, with a focus on the social and cultural aspects of health. The program is divided into three main areas: Health Promotion, Health Protection, and Health Management. The PGSC is a multidisciplinary program, involving professionals from various fields, including medicine, nursing, psychology, sociology, and anthropology. The program is recognized by the Brazilian Council of Education (CENES) and the National Council of Education (CNE).
